THRONGS WITNESS TREE PLANTING ON TEMPORARY SITE

Last Sunday, April 3, various organizations and individuals of Daly City donated and planted many beautiful trees at the municipal nursery, located at the water-works, Citrus and Niantic avenues, to be cared for by the water department until such time as the Municipal Park shall be ready to receive them. At that time they will be transplanted and properly set in place by the Park committee of the local City Council.

City Councilman Arthur J. Bodien, chairman of the tree planting committee, wishes to thank each organization and individual who so kindly donated a tree and contributed to the success of the occasion by their attendance.

The following is a list of the organizations and persons who donated trees for the tree planting ceremony: American Legion Post No. 410, Daly City, and their Auxiliary; Old Glory Post No. 2044, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, and their Auxiliary; Commissioners of the Daly City Fire Department; Company No. 4 and Company No. 6, Daly City Fire Department; El Carmelo Parlor N. S. G. W. and N. D. G. W.; Colma-Vista Grande Aerie Fraternal Order of Eagles; Daly City Merchants' Association; Daly City Veteran Firemen's Association; Boy Scouts of Daly City; City Cuncil of Daly City; Daly City Police Department; Parent-Teachers' Associations of Daly City; Mr. Andrew Vireno; Mr. Lawrence Vireno; Mrs. L. Pepper, of Lasswell Company; Mrs. C. Scott; Daughters of Union Veterans, Tent No. 28; the Mormon church; Municipal Employees of Daly City; William Ottoboni, Tanforan Nursery; Richard Platt, Platt Nursery; Judge Ellis C. Johnson; the Knights of Columbus; and Uniform Rank, Veteran Firemen.

City Councilman Arthur J. Bodien, acting as master of ceremonies, outlined the purpose of the tree planting, and introduced the following speakers: Commander Jack Mockler, of Daly City Post No. 410, American Legion, who introduced Mrs. Keyes, Department President of the Legion Auxiliaries; Mrs. J. Jordan, President of the Daly City American Legion Auxiliary, who in turn introduced Mrs. Gladys Anderson, President of the Eighth District of Legion Auxiliaries; Mr. Fred Collins, acting as representative of Old Glory Post No. 2044, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States; Mr. William Bolger, of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, who spoke in behalf of his organization and their band; Mrs. Scott, representing the Daughters of Union Veterans, Tent No. 28; District Commissioner L. W. Johnston, Daly City District No. 11, Boy Scouts of America; Mrs. S. A. Landini, fourth vice-president of Parent-Teachers' Association of San Mateo county; Mr. R. L. Crane, district superintendent of schools; City Councilman Henry Sundermann; Mr. Fritz Hansen, Veteran Firemen; and Mrs. E. Cuneo, Knights of Columbus. All gave an interesting and descriptive talk on the part each organization takes in this community.

The Eagles Band entertained the gathering with their selections of peppy marches and patriotic airs, and much credit is due them for their assistance in making the tree planting successful. Boy Scouts Troops. No. 148 and No. 149 and Cub Packs No. 34 and No. 36, under the leadership of Scoutmasters Chester Smith and Al Brauns and Cubmasters Bradford and Woody Olson, with their Troop colors, formed a guard of honor around the trees. The colors of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary and the American Legion and Auxiliary were grouped together in the enclosure containing the trees, making a beautiful setting and background for the speakers' platform.

City Councilman Arthur J. Bodien, on behalf of the City Council, will accept all donations of trees by any organization or individual, to be used in beautification of the City Park.

LOCAL VETERAN FIREMEN ATTEND MONTHLY MEETING

Members of the Daly City Veteran Firemen enjoyed a most interesting monthly meeting on Friday evening, April 1.

A proposition for a funeral benefit was discussed, but is still in the hands of the directors.

The directors are considering plans for the annual summer outing and picnic for the members of the Veteran Firemen's Association.

Comrade Captain H. Anderson, late of the San Francisco department and a member of the San Francisco Veteran Firemen's Association, was made an honorary member of the Daly City Veteran Firement Association.

T. P. Moran, former City Councilman, was a visitor. The members were glad to see him, and he stated that he was glad to see his old friends again. He was a member of the Daly City Fire Department, and is also a member of the Veteran Firemen's Association. Mr. Moran is now living in Alameda.

The Uniform Rank will again hold their meetings and drills every third Friday of the month. All members are requested to be present.

The meeting adjourned out of respect to the late Comrade and Fireman Angelo Selmi, who was a member of Station No. 3, Daly City Volunteer Fire Department.

LEGION MEMBERS TO ATTEND RALLY

Members of Daly City Post No. 410, American Legion, will hold a regular meeting tonight, Friday, April 8. Commander Jack Mockler has announced that the meeting will be very brief, and will begin a little earlier, to give the boys a chance to attend the Boy Scout rally to be held the same night at the Jefferson Union high school auditorium. Daly City Unit No. 410 of the American Legion Auxiliary will present a banner to the Daly City Boy Scouts at the same time.

Daly City Post was well represented at the tree planting celebration held last Sunday. The Post and Auxiliary colors were used as an escort for the distinguished visitor, Mrs. Bernice O. Keys, president of the California Department of the American Legion Auxiliary, who dedicated ten trees, donated by Daly City Unit No. 410.

Comrades Kennedy, Sanders and Trier attended a joint stag party held by the 363rd Infantry Post of the American Legion and 91st Division Association. They reported that it was a most enjoyable party. These Comrades were members of that fighting 91st.

The broadcast coming from KFRC every Thursday night at 9 o'clock should be very interesting to ex-service men. KFRC is presenting a "Courage" series of dramas, depicting incidents in the World war which won Congressional medals for ninety men in the United States. These dramas are written from historical records.

Department headquarters of the American Legion says that: "California's unemployment problem would be a comparatively easy one to solve were it not for the presence in this state of almost one-half million persons who are not eligible for American citizenship. The number of Mexicans in California until recently was approximately 300,000. Sixty thousand Japansese, scores of thousands of Filipinos and a large number of Hindus have given us a problem of deep concern to every community. In the Hawaiian Islands the total population, such a mixture of races, represents some 350,000 persons. A condition of affairs paralleled only in our own state."

A total of $49,556,692 has been invested in homes and farms for ex-service men by the California Veterans' Welfare Board in its nine years of operation, according to George M. Stout, secretary of the board.

The first bond issue of $10,000,000 for the purchase was voted in 1921. Since then two other issues of $20,000,000 each were voted by the people of the state, making $50,000,000 the total available during the period. This amount has now been practically expended, with a long list of veterans still waiting for loans to purchase homes and farms. The largest amount invested during any one year was in 1931, when property valued at $15,035,734 was purchased.

Every county in the state has benefited by the loans to veterans, which are paid back to the state in monthly payments ranging over a period of twenty years. Up to January 1, a total of 10,438 homes and farms were bought, with the average cost of the homes at $4,727, and farms at $5,248.

Los Angeles leads the counties of the state in the amount invested. There $15,490,208 was expended during the nine years. Alameda county comes next with $7,252,465, and then San Francisco with $7,208,015. Other counties where over a million dollars were invested are: Sacramento, $3,885,115; San Joaquin, $1,532,030; Fresno, $1,353,695; San Diego, $1,314,880; San Mateo, $1,309,100; and Santa Clara, $1,159,560. Calveras county is at the bottom of the list with an investment of $3,100.

SERMON ON GIVING IN GRACE CHURCH

Rev. John R. Stevenson, pastor of Grace Presbyterian church, will preach a sermon on "Giving," Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service. How much does one give to others? What claim does the church have on us? In the evening at the 7:45 service the name of his sermon will be "Requited!" Strangers are always welcome and the people of the community invited to hear something new about the Book of Books. The location of the church is at the corner of Hanover and Evergreen.

ELECTION OF BODIEN, SUNDERMANN ENSURES PROGRESS WITH ECONOMY

We have now reached the final stage of an intensive election campaign. Public interest has been thoroughly aroused and sustained for many weeks—and now the hour of decision is at hand. Before proceeding to our concluding argument in favor of Councilmen Henry Sundermann and Arthur J. Bodien, we will allow each candidate to speak for himself.

The demands of a political campaign are very exacting, and these two candidates have undertaken this work with the same zeal and thoroughness which has characterized all their efforts during their years as Councilmen. It has been no easy task to corner them for an interview. A few nights ago, however, a representative of the Record was able to draw them aside during a brief lull in pre-election activities and forthwith demanded a brief personal statement from each of them.

HENRY SUNDERMANN

Councilman Sundermann said: "I am fully aware of the value of pre-election promises and as carefulness has always been somewhat of a watchword with me, I am usually watchful in my choice of words when making statements for publication. This much I will say—that I have always taken a pride in being studiously attentive to the duties which were assigned to me as Councilman. The important work of the finance committee has always attracted my interest, and I believe that anything I may have been able to accomplish in this branch of city work has been guided by a spirit of true caution and economy. It will continue to be my policy to stretch the coverage of the tax dollar to the widest limit. It is my desire to guard the interests of the people and to protect their pocketbooks without sacrifice of efficency or surrender of progressiveness. It will also be my pleasant duty to see that the equipment of the Public Library keeps pace with the demands of our growing population. I submit the issue of this election with all confidence to the fair judgment of the citizens."

Councilman Bodien views the outcome of the election with the optimism of the public servant who knows that he has given his best. He stated, "I am one of those men who would rather work than talk, and I have been putting in many busy hours during this present campaign. My re-election will signify to me that the majority of the people wish me to continue on the lines which I have followed during my eight years in their service. Most Councilmen have their particular hobbies and mine have centered in the splendid activities of our Volunteer Fire Department and in the development of our public park. It is my hope to carry on the work of the park without delay and to provide within a short time a suitable recreation ground for our city. I expect to continue actively in Fire Department work as heretofore, for I have always been fully appreciative of the achievements of this excellent institution. It will be a great pleasure to continue to serve the people of Daly City with my present colleagues."

ARTHUR J. BODIEN

As we review the present campaign, we are impressed with a sense of admiration of the methods adopted by the two incumbent candidates—Henry Sundermann and Arthur J. Bodien. In accordance with their commendable custom, they have refrained from personalities and have made a campaign which was clean and beyond reproach, based solely upon their own excellent record. They have kept closely to main issues, have avoided questionable propaganda, and have been guided by moderation throughout.

In the history of politics it has been observed that the character of the campaign conducted by a candidate furnishes clear indication and prophecy of the quality of his service after he is elected. We have had the opportunity of following the methods of Henry Sundermann and Arthur J. Bodien in several campaigns and have discovered that after they were seated on the Council they fulfilled the expectation of the people by continuing as they had first set out. Their statements to the voters be-

MAYOR DISCUSSES PROGRESS OF CITY

We welcome this week a personal letter addressed to the citizens of Daly City by Mayor H. H. Smith. He has always believed it a good plan to allow actions to speak for themselves, but whenever important issues seem to demand it he is willing to make public statements of opinion. His letter deals with the present condition of the city and the candidature of Henry Sundermann and Arthur J. Bodien for City Councilmen. It contains a friendly message and bears the imprint of the Mayor's personality. We take much pleasure in printing it here.

"Dear Friends:

"Ray L. Riley, Comptroller of the State of California, for many years has published an annual report of the financial transactions of municipalities in California. His reports show that the cost of municipal government per person in Daly City is the lowest in the state for cities of like size.

"The people of Daly City may justly be proud of this record, which has been gained through efficiency and economy in the city government, and through the intelligent co-operation of every member of every department. Such success, however, would not have been possible had it not been for the loyal support which the majority of the people have given the city administration for many years.

"Henry Sundermann and Arthur J. Bodien, incumbent members of the City Council, who are now seeking re-election, are men of wide experience in civic business. As members of the City Council for many years, and also as active workers in practically every movement for the public good, they have played a prominent part in the upbuilding of our city. They have taken their work in the service of the people very seriously, and have endeavored in every way to merit the confidence placed in them. Exceptional service has been rendered by Mr. Sundermann as chairman of the Finance Committee and Library Committee, and by Mr. Bodien as chairman of the Street, Park and Fire Committees; and they have also performed distinguished duty in all departments of the work of the city.

"I have absolute faith and confidence in the fairness of the citizens of Daly City. You are as anxious as I am to place tried and trusted men in charge of the affairs of the city The two members of the City Council who are seeking re-election, Henry Sundermann and Arthur J. Bodien, are men of this type. Viewing them as reliable employees of long and faithful service, they should be rewarded by your support at the polls on next Monday.

"I wish to take this opportunity of expressing my sincere thanks to the people of Daly City for the kindly support with which they have honored me for many years. I realize my obligation to them, and have always endeavored to respond to their confidence by devoting my best efforts to their service.

"Sincerely yours,
H. H. SMITH, Mayor."

We are much impressed with the dignity and courtesy revealed in the style and contents of this letter. There are many things that might have been said at a time like this, and which would have been said by many men under similar conditions, but the Mayor has displayed his usual patience and moderation in face of criticism of a distinctly objectionable character.

Most of us are familiar with the events of the past few weeks. We recall that the Mayor was seized by sudden illness in the latter part of February and was obliged to enter the hospital for a serious operation. While he was still recuperating his name was repeatedly mentioned in certain hostile and ill-timed political pamphlets. Mayor Smith is not a candidate for public office this year and, furthermore, it does not seem like good sportsmanship to undertake criticism of a public official during a period of convalescence. The Mayor himself would be the last to complain of this unfairness, but his friends are keenly resentful of the attempt to bring him into political discussions at a season when his own public career is not at stake. Telegrams and letters have been sent to him from all parts of the state expressing disapproval of such political propaganda and assuring him of continued confidence and good wishes. In addition to this testimony from his friends, it now transpires that many adherents of the opposition party very strongly disapprove of the publicity methods adopted by their own organization.

It is a matter for regret that in their desire to serve political ends certain members of this community did not hesitate to bring undesirable notoriety to their city. So far as we can determine they have no argument that is worthy of notice. In the absence of real cause for grievance they have been obliged to draw upon their imagination and to invent charges which all thoughtful people know to be ridiculous. In spite of the fact that their propaganda was preposterous, Mayor Smith was willing to meet them in debate and made an open challenge to discuss current issues publicly with any person or persons who would take responsibility for statements which had been circulated by pamphlet throughout the city. This challenge, to our keen

SCOUTS TAKE PART IN TREE PLANTING

In keeping with their pledge to be of service at all times, the Boy Scouts of this district took an active part in the tree planting celebration held last Sunday at the Municipal Nursery, Niantic and Citrus avenues.

It was an inspiring sight to see the youngsters, with their wonderful display of Troop colors, formed in a circle around the enclosure in which the trees were planted. It was also pleasing to witness the capable manner in which the Scouts and Cubs were handled by the leaders. Much praise is due to Scoutmasters Chester Smith and Al Brauns, and Cubmasters Bradford and Woody Olson for the time and effort they are devoting to the furtherance of the Scout movement in this city. These young men are responsible for building up the local units to their present degree of efficiency.

District Commissioner L. W. Johnston and City Councilman Arthur J. Bodien, chairman of the District committee, Boy Scouts of America, are busily engaged in completing the final plans for the rally to be held at the Jefefrson Union high school auditorium this Friday evening, April 8. On this program the San Francisco Boy Scout band of 120 pieces, and many other special numbers, will be put on by the boys.

The purpose of this rally is intended to show the people of Daly City just what our Scoutmasters Chester Smith and Al Brauns and Cubmasters Bradford and Woody Olson will expect of the local boys in the near future.

A large crowd is expected at this celebration, during which the presentation of the play, "Hands Across the Sea," will be given for the first time in the Bay district. The admission is free and everybody is welcome.

CANADIAN LEGION VISIT CLEAR LAKE

Last Saturday the Canadian Legion and their friends visited Clear Lake, their purpose being to make arrangements for the purchase of the Highland Hotel, a beautiful estate overlooking the lake.

A large crowd left San Francisco and met the Oakland Legion at Napa. Headed by the State Patrol, the Caledonian Pipe Band of San Francisco, the British War Veterans' Pipe Band of Oakland, the British consul and his wife, the procession began.

All along the route they had a royal welcome, the band playing in several towns through which they passed. On reaching the hotel a wonderful reception awaited them. A band of fifty-five pieces, composed of children from the various schools, gave them a rousing welcome.

After supper an entertainment and dance was enjoyed until 2 o'clock in the morning. On Sunday three yachts were at the disposal of the veterans, with an invitation to visit Captain Hill, a British ex-service man. The offical yacht was Jack London's, now in the possession of Captain Ayres.

Several Daly City people enjoyed this outing and had a wonderful time. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. James R. Bennett, Miss Jean Bennett, Miss Georgina Cockburn, Mr. James Hay, Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Prescott.

The arrangements were taken care of by Major Foster and great credit is due him, for they couldn't be surpassed.

PRINTER SERIOUSLY INJURED WHEN DRIVER FELL ASLEEP

Joe Pound, a printer of South San Francisco, is in a serious condition at Mills Memorial hosiptal, as the result of a collision on the Bayshore boulevard while he was driving toward Redwood City. Pound suffered a fractured skull and body bruises when his car and another driven by Wildes E. Chambliss, of Burlingame, collided. According to police, Chambliss said he fell asleep at the wheel for a second and awoke to see the other car too late to avoid a collision. Mrs. Chambliss and her infant daughter were also slightly injured.

People who do not amount to much themselves brag most about their bright children and prominent ancestors.

SUPERVISOR PLAN WORK TO AID THE UNEMPLOYED

At the meeting of the San Mateo county board of supervisors last Monday, the board instructed Surveyor James S. James to prepare plans for the construction of a driveway in front of the new wing of the San Mateo Community hospital, connecting with Edison avenue, San Mateo. Supervisor Brown said the work would provide a number of jobs for the unemployed. About $1,000 is provided in the budget for the improvement.

A contract was signed for the feeding of federal prisoners in the county jail at a cost of 65 cents per prisoner per day. The county is reimbursed by the federal government.

WONDER HORSE OF CENTURY PASSES

The American racing world, now centered at the Pacific Coast Breeders Association meeting at Tanforan, was stunned this week by the sudden death of Phar Lap, wonder horse of the century, at his training stable in Menlo Park.

Tanforan operators had been preparing a special stake race in which Phar Lap was to have been the main contender for a purse of $25,000. Horsemen and followers of the turf were looking forward to the great match with keen anticipation.

One of the greatest crowds ever assembled at Tanforan gathered on the opening day to witness the Inaugural Handicap, and it is expected that equally as many will be on hand tomorrow (Saturday) for the Tanforan Spring Special in which the best mounts at the big oval will compete for a purse of $2,500.

One horse, the Oak Tree stable's Bahamas, has already won his spurs at Tanforan, taking the Inaugural Handicap. As the result of this victory, Bahamas has been withdrawn from competition to train for the Derby Candidates Handicap on April 16. Bahamas came north from Caliente, where the mount gave many of the best in turfdom a tough time.

The same officials who opened the track and piloted it to the popularity and good will it now enjoys have returned to conduct the meeting this year. Judge Joseph A. Murphy is in the judges' stand, and Ralph C. MacArthur is resident manager of the plant.

Operators of the plant report an increasing interest among California breeders. Among the principal colors flying at Tanforan are those of the Spreckles family. Their various stables house some of the best western bred mounts in the game. The course at Tanforan was named for A. B. Spreckles, who was one of the principal rebuilders of the track nine years ago.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Here we are with a new month and the opening of the camping season. With five different camps this year, the season should start off in a manner and style that will suit every mother and father, and especially the boys.

Just a short distance from here the Scoutmasters have secured an ideal camp site. It is situated along side a good stream and completely surrounded by trees of all kinds familiar in this section. The property belongs to a Mr. Eccles and Mr. Con, and in due respect to these two men of such generous nature the camp is to be christened Camp Ecco.

The winning patrol of Troop 148 will be taken on an over-night trip to Camp Snipe on the 16th and 17th of this month. The trip will be under the personal supervision of Mr. Brauns, Scoutmaster.

Pack No. 34 will have a parents' night on the 14th of this month, and cordially invite all parents and those interested to attend. There will be sixteen awards made at this time.

James Utman and "Dinky" Widasky were awarded their second class badges last Friday night, and we wish them luck.

There were fifty-seven members of the Scouts and Cubs present at the tree planting celebration last Sunday. Pack 34 deserves congratulations for having the largest turnout. Mr. Bradford is doing well with his Pack.

Mr. Olson states that four of his boys have attained the awards of the golden arrow head for Wolf Pack.

The patrol leaders and their assistants will attend a conference at Camp Ecco on Saturday and Sunday. They will be under the direction of Mr. Smith.

Mr. Brauns states that he still has room for several more candidates.

Troop 149 will have its inter-patrol field day Sunday afternoon at the City Park, Sunday April 17. All parents are urged to be there to lend their encouragement to the boys.

POPULAR OFFICIAL PASSES FOLLOWING BRIEF ILLNESS

Constable James C. Wallace, of South San Francisco, passed away at his home on Thursday of last week, after a week's illness. Wallace was constable of the First township at the time of his death, a post he had held for the past twenty-four years, having been elected seven consecutive times. Previous to that time he was county health officer. Constable Wallace was instrumental in apprehending Tanko and Hall, notorious gunmen who killed Chief of Police Arthur Meehan of San Bruno, about eight years ago. He was a native of Chicago and 51 years of age.

SAN MATEO SEEKS PLEDGES FOR AID OF UNEMPLOYED

The San Mateo city committee on unemployment has issued an appeal to subscribers in the relief campaign to send in their pledges immediately. The committee has expended $1,451 in job relief and given employment to 141 men, 76 of whom were sent out on projects organized by the committee, it was stated in the report.

OLD GLORY POST DANCE A SUCCESS

An evening of enjoyment was spent by a large assembly of joy-seekers who attended the benefit dance sponsored by Old Glory Post No. 2044, Veterans of Foreign Wars, in the auditorium of the City Hall, last Saturday evening, April 2.

Fred Collins, chairman of the dance committee, and his assistants are still marveling at the wonderful response to their efforts to make this event a big success. Early in the evening a large crowd was on hand and it was not long before the strains of the first snappy fox-trot resounded through the crowded auditorium.

Johnny Dell, with his accordion, was full of pep, and the manner in which he stretched that darn thing would have made many a good accordion player feel ashamed of himself and go back to the hand organ and monkey. Ed Heims, the master with the sticks, was at the drums, and it really was a shame the way he beat those things, but, we must admit that he is a wizard at keeping time. The orchestra not only startled the strangers' ears, but also those of the local residents, with their rendition of high class dance music.

The usual dancing contingent of Old Glory Post was on hand, and the members are to be commended for their turn-out in support of this affair. Greater exponents of the terpsichorean art never lived, and each succeeding dance brought new stars into the limelight. When Comrade Davey Jones Cosbie strutted out majestically with Mrs. Cosbie on his arm, some of the most prominent dancers were willing to take a back seat and act the part of wall-flowers. Comrade Cosbie gave an appreciative presentation of the "Oceano Roll." Ray Brulez, ticket dispenser and erstwhile money-man, startled the throng by showing the gyrations of the "Shimmy Schawabble," and shivered and quivered like a leaf in a Kansas storm. When he and his partner had finished that masterpiece, they both looked as if they had come out of some scuffle. Percy Hazelhurst demonstrated the art of waltzing, gliding around serenely with a beautiful woman in his arms. Some poor girl drew a blank, and when she came out of it, she found herself sailing into space with the arms of Roy Johnston around her. McHugh was very busy and surely must have tried out the dancing ability of every member of the fair sex present. Commander Dorn, with a big, beautiful blonde draped around his neck, covered more territory than was alloted to him.

Dave Refatti added a little zest to the evening by conducting the grand march and supervising the Paul Jones.

Our hats go off to the Ladies' Auxiliary for their large representation and co-operation. They were well represented in the attendance and without them the dance would have been incomplete.

Fred Collins and his committee wish to extend their thanks to all who attended the dance and helped to make it such a success. Everything was well conducted and it was midnight before every one reluctantly left for home. It was one grand ball, and will be remembered long.

SLAYER OF CALF IS GIVEN TERM IN THE COUNTY JAIL

Loren Boland, accused of grand theft in connection with the shooting of a calf in San Mateo, was given six months in the county jail when he appeared before Judge Franklin Swart last Monday. In addition he was placed on probation for two years and a half. Thomas Forcelini and Fred Finlof, accused with Boland, will not be sentenced until next week.

to operate the modern fast electric range

"How MUCH does an electric range cost to operate?" asks the clever woman shopper.

The answer is that it averages but one cent a meal per person. This has been determined by examining 1,117 electric range users' accounts.

Surely it is worth 1 cent a meal per person to let the electric range do your cooking automatically. When friends come for dinner you are the hostess. Not the cook.

Modern electric ranges are speedy. The oven heats up to 400 degrees in 9 to 11 minutes. Compare this with the time it takes to mix breakfast biscuits. You'll find, no doubt, that the electric oven is faster. Now take the surface cooking elements. During the last few years they have been speeded up. On the new electric range, surface cooking elements are as fast as you'd want them. Yet they are not excessively hot. They are regulated to eliminate scorching and to prevent frying grease from evaporating. Your kitchen, as a result, stays clean.

Consider the new electric range from the point of view of saving your time in the kitchen. After all, slaving in the kitchen never did any one good. Then consider the excellent food that it cooks automatically and with precision. Surely you'll want to take advantage of our Special Offer, which includes easy terms.

The grand floral parade will be made up of fifty to seventy-five floats, carrying out the "colonial days" theme, representing scenes from the life of Washington and historical occurrences of colonial times.

J. K. Campbell, pioneer aeronaut, started on a long balloon hop at Los Angeles and traveled only 2,500 feet—but that was almost straight up. There was no wind to carry the bag along. In landing within fifty feet of his starting place, Campbell was said by fellow balloonists to have accomplished one of the most unusual ascensions on record.

Continuation of Federal quarantine regulations against the European corn borer is being urged by quarantine authorities throughout the nation, according to a telegram received by Dudley Moulton, director of the State Department of Agriculture. Natural gas wastage has been reduced by effective application of the 1929 Gas Conservation Act, D. H. Blood, Director of Natural Resources, was informed by R. D. Bush, State oil and gas supervisor. Bush filed a report showing gas waste during January was 55,000,000 cubic feet per day, compared with estimated waste in 1929 of 500,000,000 cubic feet daily.

President Hoover recently signed an act extending the time for the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, according to reports from Washington. The act was sponsored by United States Senator Hiram Johnson and it extends the time for commencing the bridge to two years from February 20, last, and extends the time for completing it to five years from that date.

The Fourth District Court of Appeal refused to give the State Department of Public Works a mandate to force the city of San Diego and the San Diego Water Supply Company to repair the Lake Hodges dam. The court held the State could not force the making of the repairs. The public works department had held the dam to be dangerous. It is owned by the water supply company and leased to the city.

Representing one of the largest school textbook orders ever placed in California, the state printing plant recently prepared to publish 555,000 arithmetic texts under contracts awarded by the State Board of Education. The contract, which represents a cost of $165,000 in printing the books, was awarded to the state plant in competition with private-publishing concerns.

The collapse of eleven cabins at Big Trees Lodge, in the Mariposa Grove of Big Trees, was reported by a ranger patrol recently. Although the cabins were built to withstand the weight of six feet of snow, they crumpled under the tremendous load that fell this winter at the 6000-foot elevation. They will be rebuilt before May 1, when the road to the Big Trees opens officially.

Controller Riley announced he has filed suits in the Sacramento Justice Court to recover $127,824.11 corporation-franchise taxes due for 1931. The sum covers $104,346.22 taxes due, $13,043.27 penalties and $10,434.62 interest. Riley explained that most of the cases represented corporations failing to pay the minimum tax of $25 required by law. Atty.-Gen. Webb is to prosecute the suits for the Controller.

With a view to putting another obstacle in the way of auto thieves, cars registered in California for the first time from another State will draw certificates of registration and ownership of distinctive color which will follow the machine during its stay in the State. Registrar Russell Bevans of the Motor Vehicle Department said the registration certificates for the out-of-state cars would be blue and the certificates of ownership would be golden rod.

Modification of the 1924 Immigration Act to place China, Japan and other Asiatic countries on the same quota basis as European nations was recommended by Samuel J. Hume, executive secretary of the California Council on Oriental Relations, at a recent meeting of the Sacramento Valley council of the California State Chamber of Commerce. "This question is no longer an immigration problem," he argued. "It is a question of international justice which would increase good will immeasurably." Hume recommended the change because California occupies a key position in relation to Asiatic markets. The agricultural committee of the State chamber recommended legalization of beer having a higher alcoholic content than at present. The action was taken at the request of the Sacramento Hop Growers' Association. O. A. Rose of Redding was named head of a committee to make plans for a State goodwill air tour early in May.

California's largest herd of dwarf or tule Elk is to be enclosed behind a stout fence in the Buttonwillow section of Kern county. The controversy over the construction of the game preserve has been settled and the State Fish and Game Commission will proceed to fence the district set aside for the preserve. About 400 Elks are included in the herd which will be placed within the preserve and which will be fed when necessary by the State rangers. A committment made by Fish and Game officials several years ago has resulted in the decision of the present commission to proceed with the fencing in the elk and their feeding. An appropriation of $35,000 from the State has been matched by a like sum from the Kern County Supervisors for the fencing costs. Kern county farmers have complained because of the damage done to crops and to fruit trees by the tule elk. Damages were sought from the 1931 Legislature. Game officials say the preserve will put an end to the work of marauders. The State also has under rental about 1000 acres near Ashley on the Yolo-Colusa counties line where from 250 to 350 tule elk are protected. A third small band of about thirty-five is in the Yosemite valley. The Fish and Game Commission also has under its protection approximately 500 elk, mostly in the Horse mountain neighborhood on the Pitt river, Shasta county.

A new organization for fire fighting and a policy to stamp out incendiarism was announced recently by the State Board of Forestry. Under the reorganization plan to be put in effect during the coming fire season the State will be divided into four fire districts, each with a deputy fire chief in charge. A chief in charge of all districts will work under State Forester Pratt and his staff at Sacramento. Heretofore all fire fighting activities have been directed from Sacramento. Red Bluff will be headquarters for the northern district, comprising Mendocino, Humboldt, Trinity, Siskiyou, Tehama, Lassen, Shasta and Butte counties. In the central district, with headquarters in Sacramento, will be Yuba, Nevada, Placer, El Dorado, Amador, Calaveras, Tuolumne, Mariposa, Colusa, Madera, Fresno, Tulare and Kern counties. The central coast district will include Sonoma, Lake, Napa, Solano, Marin, Santa Cruz, Santa Clara, San Benito, Monterey and San Luis Obispo counties, with headquarters at Palo Alto. The southern district will be administered from Pasadena and will cover San Diego, Riverside and San Bernardino counties, where the State has forest crews, together with cooperative activity with county organizations in Los Angeles, Ventura and Santa Barbara counties. As a step in reducing incendiary fires no itinerants will be employed as fire fighters, State Forester Pratt said. He explained it was recognized by the board that many man-set fires last year resulted from efforts of unemployed men to get on the State pay roll. If regular State crews are unable to handle fires, permament residents of nearby communities are to be hired.

Vaccination of 1100 cattle in an eastern Fresno county herd was ordered by Dr. J. R. Hoop, county veterinarian, after fifteen of the animals were found infected with anthrax. Dr. Hoop said immediate vaccination is the only means to prevent the spread of the malady.

Is There Something in Your Eye?

THIS giant eye magnet which Dr. L. R. Mackey and Miss Flora Olsen are demonstrating in a Minneapolis hospital, with Miss Marie Skeie, a nurse, playing patient, is the largest of its kind in the world and was made for the removal of steel from the interior of the eye. It was the gift of Dr. C. N. Spratt, eye specialist, and is so powerful that it can drag an ordinary flat iron across the floor or cause a watch to fly out of its owner's pocket. The magnet weighs more than 800 pounds and has a ten horsepower pull. The core, which is made from a wrought iron shaft used in one of the old flour mills in Minneapolis 75 years ago, is wound with one and one-half miles of copper wire and uses 220 volts generated by a ten horsepower motor.

Paris Teatime Frocks Given Angel Sleeves

Angel sleeves have returned to the mode. Teatime frocks are often designed with big swooping sleeves, and the newest negligees have elaborately wide sleeves drooping to the wrist.

One of the outstanding negligee models is of ruby georgette, while another is of turquoise blue satin. Both are designed with angel sleeves.

One of the smartest Parisiennes wears a long-sleeved frock of white silk pique with a white felt cloche banded with sapphire blue ribbon, while another chooses a short-sleeved sports dress of white silk and a bright red hat, belt and bag.

WHAT ARE YOU PLANTING?

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHAT will you plant in your garden plot?
Pansies, or tulips, or weeds, or what?
"Weed?" you say. "Why, certainly not!

"Who plants mullein who might have rose?
In my garden do you suppose
I'd plant thistles, and things like those?"

Yet there's a garden all year long
Where we're scattering right or wrong,
Seeds to weaken or make us strong.

There's a plot of another kind,
There's a garden we call the mind.
In that garden what shall we find?

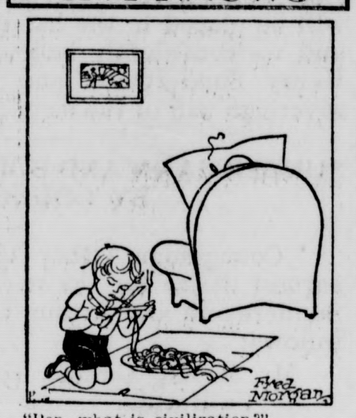

What is the book you choose to read?
What do you sow when you sow the seed
Of thoughts to follow, the rose or weed?

What is the picture you choose to see?
Crime, or filth, or immodesty?
What, in your heart will the harvest be?

Some day the tempter will come to you.
Then as you think you will likely do.
What of your garden, and what of you?

Not Much Meat Needed

A CUPFUL or two of any kind of well-cooked meat may make a most tasty dish. It is the flavor found in the extractives which gives meat its attractive appeal. A very little will answer as well as a large quantity, if the dish is made up of other nourishing foods.

For a supper dish to serve with Lyonnaise or creamed potatoes, or with potato salad, thinly sliced frankfurters, heated very hot in a frying pan, make a most tasty dish.

Spanish Chicken.

Make a sauce of a tablespoonful of butter, two of flour, and two cupfuls of water to which beef extract or bouillon cubes have been added. Add one cupful of cooked chicken cut fine, one small onion minced, one pimiento cut fine and two tablespoonfuls of cooked peas. Serve very hot on toast.

Beef Fricadelles.

Take two cupfuls of minced beef, season with salt and pepper, thyme, sage, lemon juice and grated onion. Add a half cupful of cooked rice or dry bread crumbs, one well-beaten egg, with a little water or broth to moisten. Form into flat cakes and fry in hot fat.

French Beef Hash.

Prepare one part of meat finely chopped and two parts cooked potatoes, adding the white of an egg beaten light. Place well seasoned in a baking dish and bake until brown.

Bedtime Story by Thornton W. Burgess

THE King is great! The King is strong! The King, good sir, may do no wrong!

The King of the birds is Old King Eagle, as every one knows. He is king because his father was king before him, and his father's father, and so on 'way back to the long ago time when the world was young. To him all the other feathered folk yield and pay homage because by virtue of his great strength and courage he is their lord and master. Now, Old King Eagle is for the most part a wise and just ruler. He does his own hunting. He demands no tribute, save in one thing.

Of course, you know what tribute is. Tribute is a gift from the weak to the strong, a gift not offered willingly by the giver, but demanded by the one to whom it is given. Kings are very apt to demand tribute from those over whom they rule. But Old King Eagle demands no tribute from his subjects save one, and that one is one of his largest and strongest subjects. Can you guess who it is? It is Plunger the Fish Hawk. Yes, sir, Plunger the Fish Hawk has to pay tribute to Old King Eagle. He doesn't do it willingly, but he does it just the same. He does it because King Eagle is big enough and strong enough to force him to. And the reason that King Eagle demands tribute from Plunger is that King Eagle has learned to like the taste of fish, but has not learned how to catch fish for himself. Therefore he must depend on some one else to catch them for him, and that some one is Plunger.

On this particular morning that Plunger had had to be so patient in order to catch a fat fish to take home to Mrs. Plunger, sitting on the eggs in their nest in the Green Forest, it had come into the head of Old King Eagle that he was hungry for fish. The more he thought about it the hungrier he grew. Sitting on the stump of a tree on the edge of a cliff of the Big Mountain he could see the Big River like a silver ribbon in the distance—that is, it would have looked like a silver ribbon to you or to me had we been in his place. But so wonderful and keen are the eyes of King Eagle that he could see the Big River clearly. He could see more. He could see a speck sailing back and forth over the Big River, and he knew that that speck was Plunger the Fish Hawk.

Old King Eagle chuckled. "My fisherman is fishing for me, but he doesn't know it," said he. Then he spread his wonderful great wings and sailed out and up, like the royal master of the air that he is. Up, up he flew until he was but a speck in the sky to anyone watching from below. Straight toward the Big River he flew, and there in majestic, great circles he sailed round and round three times as far above Plunger as Plunger was above the Big River. Plunger, his eyes fixed on the water below, knew nothing of King Eagle above him. So Plunger flew patiently back and forth and round and round over the Big River, watching for fish, and cloud-high above him King Eagle swung in great circles watching Plunger.

He laughed aloud, did Old King Eagle, when at last Plunger shot down into the water with a great splash and presently flapped upward heavily with a big fat fish in his claws and then headed straight toward the Green Forest. In his turn King Eagle shot downward. The rustle of his great wings was heard by Plunger, who looked up with both fear and anger in his eyes.

"Tribute! Give me tribute!" cried Old King Eagle fiercely.

"I won't! It is my fish, for I caught it!" screamed Plunger.

"Tribute! Tribute!" demanded Old King Eagle more fiercely than before.

Still Plunger clung to the fish for which he had waited so long and patiently.

"I won't!" he screamed again, and this time there was an answering scream. It was Mrs. Plunger. She had heard him and now was coming swiftly to aid him. So Plunger clung more tightly than ever to the big fish and beat his way toward the Green Forest, hoping that something would happen to cheat Old King Eagle of that splendid prize.

BUY HOME PRODUCTS

Campaigns for the encouragement of the buying of products manufactured near home have been carried on in various communities with varying success for many years. Nearly everyone agrees that the idea is sound in principle, but many fail to put it into practice when the time comes to buy.

Any small local industry which manufactures a worthy product and sells it at a reasonable price might be enabled to grow large through the loyal support of home people. Its growth would enable it to increase its payrolls, increase its consumption of locally produced raw materials, build up increased taxable wealth, and in every way contribute to the progress and prosperity of its community.

These are trite and self-evident facts which have been put forward time and again, yet many otherwise good citizens deliberately contribute to the upbuilding of distant cities at the expense of their own towns and counties through failing to patronize home establishments.

The policy of buying at home would do more for the average town than can be accomplished by all the commercial organizations and boosters' clubs which may be maintained. These organizations are needed, of course, but their efforts should be aided by supporting the enterprises already in the community.

ELECTION OF BODIEN AND SUNDEMANN ENSURES PROGRESS WITH ECONOMY

fore election were not forgotten after they had been chosen for public service. It appeared that their promotion to positions of trust by the people developed in them a solemn sense of responsibility which has affected all their work.

There is really only one issue before us in this election —the selection for Councilmen of those candidates whose practical experience qualifies them to discharge the duties most satisfactorily. It is not necessary to train new men for this important work when we have confidence in those who have done it so well. We have yet to hear the first complaint in any quarter affecting the efficiency of the two incumbent candidates; there seems to be no argument on this point. They are efficient and they are willing to carry on, at the pleasure of the people.

The future of our city is safe so long as we continue to entrust its business management to men like Henry Sundermann and Arthur J. Bodien. Much has been said in these columns on their behalf, now all may be summed up in a few brief, plain statements as the decision of the people draws near. We know all there is to be known about these two men, we trust them, they meet all requirements, they have not failed in their task. We have proved them in the past. We may continue to trust them. Their ideals have been high and their workmanship clean; they have served us well. An award of distinction will be placed in the hands of the citizens next Monday and we confidently believe that the choice will rest on Henry Sundermann and Arthur J. Bodien when the sovereign will of the people is declared at the polls.

SUNDERMANN AND BODIEN COMMENDED BY COUNCILMAN ARTHUR DALTON

Councilman Arthur Dalton desires to make public his earnest desire for the re-election of Councilmen Henry Sundermann and Arthur J. Bodien and has written us as follows:

Mr. R. A. Canine, Daly City Record, Daly City, California.

Dear Mr. Canine:

The harmony which prevails in our city administration is well known throughout the city, and I believe it has been the underlying cause for the success of the present administration. Councilmen Henry Sundermann and Arthur J. Bodien have faithfully discharged their duties as members of the city government for many years, and it would be difficult to duplicate their contribution to the program of the City Council.

Not only because I have enjoyed my association with them, but also because I am firmly convinced that we can not improve on them, I wish to commend them very heartily to the citizens of Daly City on election day. Probably only those who have worked with them in an official capacity can fully appreciate the measure and value of their service.

Please accept my thanks for the use of your columns to voice the hope that these two gentlemen will be re-elected next Monday by a substantial majority.

Yours very truly,

ARTHUR DALTON.

CITY COUNCILMAN JULIUS TWESTEN ENDORSES BODIEN AND SUNDERMANN

We are pleased to acknowledge and print a letter of endorsement received from Councilman Julius Twesten with reference to the candidature of Arthur J. Bodien and Henry Sundermann at the forthcoming city election.

Mr. R. A. Canine, Editor Daly City Record, Daly City, California.

Dear Mr. Canine:

I shall be pleased if you will allow me to avail myself of the wide publicity secured by your excellent paper to express my hearty endorsement of Henry Sundermann and Arthur J. Bodien, who are candidates for re-election as Councilmen next Monday. I have been associated with these two capable Councilmen for several years and can testify with all sincerity to their qualifications for the office in question.

It has been a pleasure to work with them, and I earnestly hope for a continuance of my relationship with them on the City Council. I am satisfied that the best interests of the people will be served if these two tireless workers for the public good are re-elected to the Council next Monday.

Very sincerely,

JULIUS TWESTEN.

CAR DAMAGE BY RUST

One of the greatest enemies of the automobile owner is rust, which often begins its work of destruction even before the new car has been delivered to the purchaser. But science is now able to practically eliminate this damage by rust-proofing metal parts before the enamel is applied.

Car buyers of the future will insist on properly rust-proofed automobiles, according to G. E. Luke, a Detroit engineer who specializes in methods of preventing rust on motor vehicles. He declares that rust-proofing methods have so far advanced during the past few years that a car or truck not properly treated to prevent the inroads of rust and corrosion can not be called modern. His statement continues:

"No one would think of putting acid in the crank case of an automobile, for the working parts would soon be corroded beyond use. It is just as important to remove acid and other impurities from the surface of the metal parts which are to be highly finished, if the appearance of the car is to be preserved. Owners should insist that the finish of their cars stands up for a reasonable time, and this is only possible if proper treatment is given the sheet metal parts before the finishing coats are applied."

By the employment of the most improved methods it is declared that a few cents spent on each car at the time of manufacture will save many dollars for the purchaser.

COUNTY TREES THREATENED BY BEETLES AND BORERS

Max J. Leonard, horticultural commissioner of San Mateo county, last Monday informed the board of supervisors that if it wanted to preserve the Monterey spruce and pine trees in the county, immediate action would be necessary. Leonard said that nearly every tree in the Bay section of the county had fallen victim to beetles and borers, and theat nearly all the spruce and pine trees from the San Francisco city line south were in grave danger of extinction. He added that the beetles and other pests were playing havoc with the stately specimens. After considerable discussion the board laid the matter over for a week, and advised Leonard to submit to them a plan for curbing the epidemic. It may be, Leonard said, that all infected trees will have to be uprooted and destroyed.

The manufacturers' sales tax having been rejected by Congress, we are now threatened with a multitude of "nuisance taxes," such as were imposed to raise funds for war purposes. But any old tax is a nuisance to the fellow who has to pay it.

WE BACK UP

—This statement with facts: that statistics from the Census Department shows that the average number in an American family is four and one-fifth. We wonder if the one-fifth is father.

Another statement we'll back up is: that if we do the repair work on your car that it won't be done like a schoolboy washes his ears—we'll make a thorough job of it; and when we start on your job we don't waste our time looking for a wrench and then try to find a nut to fit the wrench.

The flower show, the grand floral parade, a Junior Olympics athletic meet, and a night Fandango are among other events on the coming Fiesta program. The dates are from May 19 to 21.

NEW MEAT INSPECTION LAW BECAME EFFECTIVE APRIL 1

California's new meat inspection law, making state inspection of meat compulsory instead of voluntary, as in the past, went into effect April 1 in twenty-eight counties.

The new law, which supplants the meat inspection statute of 1921, provides that on and after this date in counties of 27,000 population and over, slaughtering and meat processing establishments shall be operated under federal, state or approvel municipal inspection. In the other more sparsely settled counties, the effective date when meat inspection shall become obligatory is to be determined by the director of the State Department of Agriculture. The new act is administered by the department.

To insure the operation of the law on its effective date, the department inspected 117 slaughter plants and over 100 sausage manufacturing plants, all of which are being operated under the inspection service of the larger cities. Much new construction, remodeling and re-equipping was necessary in the meat establishments in order to bring them under the provisions of the act.

The counties in which the law went into effect on April 1 are Alameda, Butte, Contra Costa, Fresno, Humboldt, Imperial, Kern, Los Angeles, Riverside, San Francisco, San Mateo, Marin, Monterey, Merced, Orange, Santa Cruz, Santa Clara, Sacramento, San Joaquin, Stanislaus, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Sonoma, San Bernardino, San Diego, Solano, Tulare and Ventura.

Rural communities maintaining slaughter houses and meat processing establishments which will come under the provisions of the act later, have been provided with a bulletin from the department advising them of the steps they must take in order to conform to the law.

WHAT HAS TRANSPIRED

Joe Barry, country youth in New York, ekes out a living as caretaker in a poor rooming house and accordion player in Louie Bertolini's restaurant. Lured by the open country, he spends a night in the fields, near Newburgh. Bertolini discharges him. Friendless and "broke," he is offered $10,000 by a man he knows only as "Martin" to impersonate a liquor runner facing arrest. It means the penitentiary, but Joe is desperate. He defers decision until the next night, and is given $1,000 "on account." Next day Joe deposits $800 in country banks, giving his name as Joseph Bradley. Outside a circus tent he sees an accordion and is tempted to play it. A girl, Sue Dayton, niece of the owner, who admires the music, urges him to join the circus, but Joe says he must first return to New York "on business." He has decided to refuse "Martin's" offer. In his room four men accost him. Bewildered, Joe sees the men, who are detectives, find large amounts of money, a machine gun, and two revolvers. Next day, under arrest, Joe is identified by men who had seen him the night before near Newburgh, when two prohibition agents were killed and robbed. Joe finds he is charged with their murder and robbery. He realizes "Martin's" object—to have him found guilty of the murders, executed, and the case closed. A man known as "Fullhouse," waiter at Bertolini's, hurts Joe's case by his evidence. Joe keeps silent as to his previous day's doings, fearing to embarrass Sue Dayton. His cellmate, Hymie Fradke, gives Joe $20. Next day Fradke, having secured a revolver, "shoots it out" with prison guards, and is killed. In the confusion Joe escapes. Using the $20 Fradke had given him, he flees New York, draws some of the money he had deposited and finds the Dayton circus, looking upon it as a refuge. He is engaged as a performer, playing the accordion, with Sue his partner in the act.

Joe Barry awoke the next morning to new realizations and new resolves. No one else in his particular car was awake. He tiptoed to the washroom, carrying his shoes. Once his eyes had opened, sleep had departed wholly. This, he realized, was tomorrow.

He must make it such in every way. He had come upon the show in the belief of a debt owed to others; his own affairs therefore must be subjugated. It was a self-hypnotism which changed his attitude toward life greatly. A half-hour later, out at the circus grounds, Bill Curry, the boss canvas man, looked hard at the young man who faced him.

"Aren't you a performer?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," said Joe Barry.

"Then why," asked Bill Curry with some amazement, "do you want to know if there's any work around the lot for you? Performers don't have to help put up the circus."

Joe grinned.

"Oh, I know that. But, you see, I'm new. I'd learn a lot about the circus by working this way. Besides, I'd like to."

"Well, if that's the way you feel about it," answered Bill Curry with a widening of his eyes, "hop to it! Blame yourself, though, if a few of us bosses drop dead. We ain't used to having performers do much of anything but beef."

It was a beginning of exertions which did not end with the wearing off of the first veneer of Joe's enthusiasm. His body was of the sinewy type which reverted easily to muscle; as soon as the first soreness was over, he found a certain joy in the strain of effort, to say nothing of the mental alleviation which it gave him. For this was a new world into which he could submerge his own; here was a life which seemed endless in its mysteries. It meant the opening of new fields, new aspirations to be followed in this beloved place of deliverance. The circus had been all of that for Joe. For the first ten days or so, there had been a certain amount of agony in his existence, the fearful watchful attitude of one who was constantly amazed that out of these people, there was no one who should recognize him. Then, too, there had been the matter of his name, to be guarded every instant, lest he should allow the real one to slip. Hour after hour and day upon day he had repeated it to himself as if it were a rote—

"Joe Bradley, I'm from Great Bend, Kan.; Joe Bradley, I'm from Great Bend, Kan."

At last it had become second nature to him. Now and then he thought of his true cognomen and it sounded strange to him. Slowly he had become Joe Bradley in reality, and with that transition, it had seemed that some of the venom of his memories had departed. Likewise, the watchfulness.

All-pervading interest in this new life had made these things possible. It was as though he had been seeking this existence all his life. He went about the task of adapting himself to it almost feverishly, like a man striving to make up for lost time. Not the least pleasurable of his duties were those in the ring, when the gleaming lorlo was in his grasp, to be transformed from a mere thing of pearl and silverstone and piano keys to the guardian spot of all the music that was in his soul. It made little difference to him that the song was a temporal one; it was a tribute to Sue Dayton, and he played it as though it were a classic. Perhaps that is what made the throngs applaud. Perhaps, too, it was the earnestness of these two, with all the rest of the circus in darkness while the multi-colored flood lights played on them alone, upon them and the horse and the sparkling accordion. And then one night, as Joe Barry and Sue Dayton walked to the cars, the man suddenly whirled, looking toward the light-splotched big top, and snapping his fingers as if in abstraction.

He stood, head raised, lips moving silently, a clenched hand pounding into a palm. At last he turned.

"The act!" he exclaimed. "I've got it worked out. All the time I've known there was something missing. Something that would really make you queen of the sawdust ring. That's the idea of the whole thing, to have you the queen. Ther you ought to have some subjects, shouldn't you? You see," he continued, "You've got those girls who work in the grand entree and then don't do anything else but go into the statue act. Then, yesterday, I noticed in one of the property wagons a lot of stringers of artificial flowers. Don't you see, Sue? We could hang these stringers of flowers from above the ring and then dress the girls in those new show-girl costumes that Uncle Dan bought last week—he said he just got them because they were a bargain."

"Joe, that would be pretty! You mean to use the girls in a sort of a Maypole number while I do my act?"

"That's it. While you were getting ready for the ring, they'd weave around in the Maypole, and then stop and just hold the garlands while you went through your act. Then, when I made my entrance, they would start to move again, one crossing the other, just twining in and out. And then the thing I had thought of, was what the property man calls a snow box, filled with bits of pink paper that would sift down over us like apple blossoms falling. Wouldn't it be pretty, with the colored lights and everything?"

"Joe!" she had caught him excitedly, "it would be beautiful!" Then hurriedly: "Let's go back to the lot and find Uncle Dan, I can't wait until tomorrow."

So it was that the performance of the Dayton Brothers circus took on an entirely new aspect within the next few days. The act went on, with its new lights, its festoons and garlands of flowers, its weaving, swaying pretty forms moving about while Pierrot sang to his Pierrette, and while the apple blossoms sifted gently down upon them. Excited, somewhat dazed by the success of it, Sue Dayton and Joe Barry saw the circus performance halted that they might return for an encore, rare indeed under the big tops. The crowds grew steadily heavier.

"If you keep on this way," said Uncle Dan Dayton one morning as he halted Joe under the marquee, "John Ringling will be sending for you. Been to the wagon yet?"

"No, sir."

"You'll notice a little increase in your pay envelope. Glad to give it to you, Joe."

"You mean—a raise? A raise?" Joe asked. Suddenly he halted and gulped and when he tried to talk again, his voice sounded strange and husky. "I was getting along all right, Uncle Dan."

"Sure you were." Then, as if to change the subject. "By the way, Joe, know anything about radio? Think we could put on a radio performance?"

"I guess we could. How do you mean?" he asked.

"Well, I'm not sure myself. That's why I asked you. The idea's just been running in my head. I've heard that some of these radio stations will hook up for a fellow pretty cheap. It struck me that might not be a bad idea, to broadcast something or other between the afternoon show and the night performance. It'd remind people that the show was in town, and then it'd spread a good deal—every place that we were billed would get just a little more advertising. You could do your song, the one you do with Sue. Seems to me we could work out a pretty good program. Think it over."

"Yes, sir." Joe Barry walked on, his brain astir with the new idea. That could be worked into something worth while—soloists out of the band, a brief interlude with the side show lecturer, describing all the strange and curr·rious people, the sounds of the midway—

"Oh Joe!" It was Uncle Dan, calling to him again from the marquee. Barry turned to notice that a stranger was with the showman, a slouched being, with a low-brimmed fedora hat and baggy clothing. When Joe had returned, Uncle Dan turned to the slouchy man. "Joe Bradley here really knows more about the personnel than I do," he said. "He'll show you around. Joe, this is Chief Brace of the municipal police. He wants to look around the show lot, in case we've got any desperate characters."

"Yes, sir," said Joe Bradley. Suddenly he bit his lips, to restore the blood which had fled from them. "I'll be glad to, Uncle Dan."

Chief Black Hawk and His "War"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IT WAS just 100 years ago that there was being fought in Illinois and Wisconsin what has been called "the most inglorious war, from the standpoint of its military and 'naval' operations, in which the United States was ever engaged." This was the conflict which has a place in our history schoolbooks as "the Black Hawk war" but which scarcely deserves the dignity of that title except that it was a war between two irreconcilable points of view—that of the American frontiersman and that of the American Indian. From the Indian point of view, Chief Black Hawk was a patriot, fighting bravely in defense of his ancestral home; from the frontiersman's point of view, he was only another "savage and bloodthirsty redskin" who had to be gotten rid of to make way for the "advance of civilization."

The leading figure in this now dimly-remembered war was Ma-ka-tai-me-she-kia-kiak, or Black Hawk, a chief of the Sauk and Fox Indians, of whom Keokuk, or Watchful Fox, was the head chief. By the Treaty of November 3, 1804, made at St. Louis, the Sauk and Fox agreed to surrender all of their lands east of the Mississippi. But it was not until the close of the War of 1812, when a wave of migration began to pour into Illinois, that the United States was ready to claim the land which it had acquired from the Indians. Keokuk and the majority of his tribe bowed to the inevitable and moved across the Mississippi to a new home in Iowa. But Black Hawk, who had been a disciple of Tecumseh, the great Shawnee, and an ally of the British in the War of 1812, let it be known that would not move to Iowa. He maintained that he had been deceived as to the terms of the St. Louis treaty and did not consider them binding upon him.

By 1831 so much friction between Black Hawk's tribesmen and the Illinois settlers had developed that Governor Reynolds considered it advisable to call out the militia to "protect the lives and property" of the pioneers. But General Gaines, military commandant in the West, haping to avoid the expense of a demonstration with force, summoned Black Hawk and his subchiefs to a conference at Fort Armstrong on the Mississippi. The council was a stormy one and resulted in no satisfactory settlement of the difficulties, whereupon the militia on June 15 left their camp at Rushville, Ill., and marched upon Black Hawk's village. They found it deserted and burned all the lodges. Then Gaines sent word to Black Hawk that the "hostiles" should come in for a peace talk and on June 30 Black Hawk and 27 of his followers signed a treaty with Governor Reynolds by which they agreed to refrain from hostile acts and to retire to Iowa. There was no trouble with them until early in 1832 when Black Hawk crossed over into Illinois with some 2,000 Indians, of whom it was estimated more than 500 were warriors. Immediately the wildest rumors spread along the Illinois frontier. "Black Hawk and 1,000 bloodthirsty savages were descending upon the settlements to kill, scalp and burn."

The Indian side of the story is rather different. Under the terms of the treaty which Black Hawk had signed with General Gaines the Indians were to be supplied with corn in place of that which they had left in their fields when they went to Iowa. What had happened is a familiar incident in the history of our relations with the Indians. The government failed to keep its promise. The amount of corn turned over to them was so meager that they began to suffer from hunger. In that emergency, a party of the Sauk, in the words of Black Hawk, crossed the river "to steal some corn from their own fields."

Moving with his band up the Rock river, Black Hawk was overtaken by a messenger from General Atkinson, ordering him to return and recross the Mississippi. Black Hawk replied that he had not taken the warpath but was going on a friendly visit to the village of White Cloud, the Winnebago prophet, and continued his journey. Atkinson then sent imperative orders for him to return at once or he would pursue with his army and drive him back. To this the Indian leader protested that the general had no right to utter such a threat so long as his mission to the Winnebagoes was a peaceable one and that he intended to continue on his way.

Continue he did, until he was met by some Winnebago and Pottawatomie chiefs. In a council they made it plain that they had no intention of joining with Black Hawk in any war upon the Americans. Feeling that he had been betrayed by his Indian friends, the Sauk leader resolved to send a flag of truce to Atkinson, asking permission to descend the Rock river, recross the Mississippi and return to his reservation in Iowa.

In the meantime Governor Reynolds had called out the militia and one of the captains of the hastily-organized companies, elected by his own men, was a lanky young storekeeper from New Salem named Abraham Lincoln. At about the time Black Hawk was holding his council with the other tribes, a large force of the militia had mobilized under General Whitesides near Dixon's Ferry. At the request of Maj. Isaiah Stillman, Whitesides sent a scouting party of about 270 men under Stillman to try to locate the Indians. This party ascended the Rock river to the mouth of Sycamore creek and camped there, ignorant of the fact that they were only a short distance from Black Hawk's camp.

Then occurred a tragic error—the first in a war filled with tragic blunders. Black Hawk sent three of his warriors under a flag of truce to ask for a conference. Stillman's undisciplined volunteers fired on them, killing one. Then followed the opera bouffe "battle" which has come down in history as "Stillman's Run" in which 40 Indians sent 270 white men into headlong flight, inflicting a loss of about a dozen on the militia.

The news of this defeat spread even greater terror through the state. Governor Reynolds called out more troops and from Washington came the news that Gen. Winfield Scott had been ordered to the scene of the "war" with a thousand regulars. While en route to Illinois this army was attacked by the cholera and the mortality from that disease was greater than the total number killed and disabled by the Indians during the entire war.

The war dragged on throughout the summer of 1832 without any very decisive result, except that the superior forces of the whites gradually began to wear down the Indians. Finally the Indian leader suffered a crushing defeat at the hands of an army commanded by Gen. James D. Henry in a battle on the Wisconsin river, losing 68 warriors killed and many more wounded and disabled.

Black Hawk now realized that the game was up. With the remnants of his band he headed for the Mississippi, hoping to escape from the soldiers and find peace among his people already settled in Iowa. He reached the Mississippi at the mouth of the Bad Axe river on August 1 with his starving warriors and his pitiful little band of women and children. Then occurred an incident which is often spoken of as a "naval engagement in an inland war."

While Black Hawk and his tribesmen were trying to cross the river in canoes and on rafts, a steamer, the Warrior, hove into sight. On board was a detachment of soldiers and one small cannon. Black Hawk raised a white flag to ask for a parley. And again the flag of truce was dishonered by the white man. The captain of the Warrior asserted that he believed the flag was only a decoy used by the wily Indians to lure him into an ambush. So he ordered the cannon to be unlimbered and it began shelling the Indian camp. As a result 23 Indians were killed outright and many others were wounded.

The following day the pursuing troops under General Atkinson, which were joined by a detachment of regulars under Col. Zachary Taylor and an army of Wisconsin volunteers, came up and attacked Black Hawk's camp. The end is not pleasant reading, for it was an Indian massacre—but contrary to the popular idea of that, it was a massacre of Indians by white men.

The weakened Indians were no match for the whites. Finding that their attempts to surrender were useless they resolved to sell their lives as dearly as possible. So they put up a desperate resistance but were driven at the point of the bayonet into the river. Indian women with children clinging to them plunged into the river only to be drowned or shot down by sharpshooters on the banks. The Warrior, returning from Prairie du Chien, added to the carnage by raking the shore with canister. More than 150 Indians were killed or drowned and only about 50 were taken prisoners.

Black Hawk and his chief warrior, Neapope, escaped to the north and sought refuge among the Winnebagoes. A short time later he surrendered to General Street at Prairie du Chien and was sent down the river to Jefferson Barracks, Mo., as a prisoner of war. The man placed in charge of him was a young lieutenant, the son-in-law of Colonel Taylor. His name was Jefferson Davis and of this man who later became President of the Confederacy, Black Hawk said "He was a good and brave young chief with whose conduct I was much pleased, and he treated me with great kindness."

After being imprisoned in Fortress Monroe, Va., for a short time Black Hawk was allowed to return to the Sauk and Fox reservation in Iowa. There he died on October 3, 1838, and there he was buried in accordance with the customs of his people. So Black Hawk slept in peace at last but not in the soil which he loved so well—that of the beautiful Rock river country in northern Illinois. But his spirit broods over that land in the form of a giant concrete statue of an Indian, the work of Lorado Taft, which stands on a high bluff near Oregon, Ill., overlooking the Rock river. Although it is commonly referred to as "the Black Hawk statue," the sculptor has repeatedly said that it is intended to symbolize the Indian—"a spirit unconquered while still the conquered race." Even so, it may appropriately be a memorial to Black Hawk of the Sauk and Foxes, for his was such a spirit.

BACK TO GOOD TIMES MOVEMENT PLANNED

"The merchants of California must lead the way to a normal buying market," declared A. P. Giannini, chairman of the Bank of America, in a statement made public last week. "All advertising dollars must be put to work to restore normal business. Let the public know that the purchasing value of the dollar is at its peak. Bet today on tomorrow."

Giannini announced that Dr. Rufus Von Kleinsmid, chancellor of the University of Southern California, would be the second speaker in a state-wide broadcast Saturday night over the National Broadcasting system in support of the "Back to Good Times" movement sponsored by the Bank of America. At the same time, Mr. Giannini announced a battery of state leaders representative of business and professional life from all sections of California, who will speak on succeeding Saturdays during the campaign. Those who have already agreed to lend their aid by speaking over the air are: Frederick J. Koster, President State Chamber of Commerce; Dr. George C. Pardee, former governor of California; John Francis Neylan, publicist; Chester Rowell, editor; Frank MacDonald, President State Building Trades Council; "Bud" Gearhart, Past State Commander American Legion; Robert G. Sproul, President University of California; Will F. Morris, President Bank of America; Bert B. Meek, President California Lands Incorporated; Dr. A. H. Giannini, chairman general executive committee, Bank of America; C. C. Chapman, Los Angeles; and William Garland, Chairman Olympic Games Committee.

"We have enlisted the support of California's leading citizens in this movement because it presents an opportunity for service to the state and to the nation," Giannini said.

"But no one man or group of men," he continued, "is powerful enough to solve this problem unaided. We can not have prosperity by legislation. Our municipalities can help, our state government can help, our national government can help—all are helping, but the power to bring about a return to sound prosperity lies with our people themselves.

"When the man 'who has'—even though he is living on a reduced income—has the courage to resume normal habits of living, then we may expect a return to normal conditions—to good times.

"This does not mean a return to the extravagance of the boom days of 1929. It means that we must start now to supply the necessities that we have been putting off buying until things look better, and which we eventually must buy and probably at higher prices than now prevail. It means that a portion of our income must be placed in a savings account as a matter of prudence and to earn interest, that we must maintain a commercial balance for our own convenience, so that this money may be placed actively at work for the benefit of all, including ourselves.

"It does not take any great financial genius to tell us these facts. All of us know them. We tell them to one another when we meet on the street, in the factory, in the office—yes, and the club. Only courage is lacking!

"Let's get back our courage, our confidence and a sound prosperity through good old-fashioned commonsense."

GRAMMAR SCHOOL NOTES OF INTEREST

The high and low Eighth grades were taken on a hike to the top of Mt. Tamalpais on Friday, March 29. The group were in charge of Mr. Crane, district superintendent, Mr. Mathews, Mrs. Hahn, and Miss Sanbrailo. The Eighth grades of Jefferson district look forward to this hike every spring. This trip was filled with all the pleasure and anticipation the children had hoped for. They made the trip in good season and were back in Daly City by 6 P. M., tired but happy.

On Friday, March 31, the girls' baseball teams of Colma and Crocker fought out a game on the Woodrow Wilson grounds. The girls showed remarkable improvement in their playing and the two teams were evenly matched. Colma finally took the honors with a score of 12 to 9.

The girls' A teams of Woodrow Wilson and Crocker will meet today at Woodrow Wilson.

Miss Marshall, demonstrator for Snowdrift and Wesson oil, has been at the Woodrow Wilson school this week, demonstrating the making of biscuits and their variations. At the end of the month she will be here to demonstrate the making of salads.

Wednesday of last week the 100 pound teams of Woodrow Wilson and Colma were scheduled to play baseball. Colma came forth with only five players, so the game was forfeited to Woodrow Wilson. Colma was given four players by Woodrow Wilson and a game was played with the Colma side winning, 11 to 4.

On Thursday the Crocker Giants met the Jefferson Yankees in a five inning game. Errors were few in this game and the game became a duel between Jack Sheridan of Crocker and Albert Agresti and Alexandro of Jefferson, who did the hurling for their schools. Jefferson won with a score of 1 to 0.

The following is the result of the schedule so far:

	Won	Lost	%
Colma	2	0	1,000
Crocker	1	1	500
Woodrow Wilson	0	2	000

disappointment, has not been accepted. It is quite evident that the unrivalled success of our city administration and the manifest results of their work furnish sufficient answer to fantastic criticisms.

The most careful scrutiny of municipal records has failed to disclose any trace of waste or mismanagement, and the proponents of hostile propaganda have been obliged finally to resort to an unimpressive technicality. This subterfuge, however, has failed to convince those in authority or the man in the street that our city government has been otherwise than efficient, conscientious and economical. We feel that the people of Daly City are reaping the reward of their own wisdom; they have selected capable business men to conduct city affairs and are to be congratulated on the splendid outcome of their own wise policy.

We understand that only a short time ago some of the leaders of the opposition stated time and again that Mayor Smith really serves our city in the capacity of city manager. Such being the case, we are certainly fortunate, for we are securing city manager service for the nominal salary of $15 a month, while other cities are paying thousands of dollars annually for this service. The title which may be applied to a civic leader is a matter of small importance; the pleasant fact remains that the people of this community are receiving the highest and best in public service from their City Council under the capable leadership of Mayor H. H. Smith. We believe that an interesting book might be written describing the policy, achievements and distinguished success of the group of men who now represent us at the City Hall.

The political propaganda directed against the re-election of Councilmen Sundermann and Bodien is not good city advertising, whereas it has always been the aim of our present Council to advertise Daly City in the most favorable terms. We firmly believe that at the coming election they will be empowered by the people to continue with this admirable plan of helpful publicity. We are satisfied that the opposition in this campaign has been of such character as to produce a powerful reaction in the minds of the people which will carry Henry Sundermann and Arthur J. Bodien to overwhelming victory at the polls.

Thirty girls roller skate in a big New York skycraper all day and get paid for it. They are inside messengers in an office of the Western Union who carry telegrams from the various receiving desks to the distribution center. Since the girls have been equipped with roller skates the average time of delivering a message has be reduced to half a minute.

Title to land extends only as far underground as the owner can reasonably make use of it, according to a New York court ruling, which held that tunneling under a piece of land at a depth of 150 feet for the purpose of laying a sewer was not encroachment. But if this should happen in an oil region the decision might be different.

RUTH CHATTERTON TO OFFER "LET US DIVORCE," AT GEARY

San Francisco will enjoy the sensation of having a great stage and screen star acting as producer and director when Ruth Chatterton will offer Rose Hobart and Ralph Forbes in the London comedy hit "Let us Divorce," at the Geary Theatre, commencing Tuesday evening, April 12. Ruth Chatterton has surrounded Rose Hobart and Ralph Forbes in "Let us Divorce" with one of the finest casts ever assembled for a stage production on the Pacific Coast. The supporting characters in this delightful comedy, which had a most successful season in London under the title "Counsel's Opinion," include Hugh Huntley, Robert Corey, Leslie Palmer, Sonny Ray, Ethel Griffies, Lowden Adams, Norman Ainslie and Pierre D'Ennery. All these players bear splendid reputations on both the London and New York stages. Hugh Huntley was brought from New York to play his important role in "Let us Divorce," after just completing a long engagement in Noel Coward's "Private Lives." Sonny Ray is a noted young British actor who starred in Australia in Noel Coward's "Bitter Sweet" and in "The Little Accident." Robert Corey will be remembered for his excellent performance with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in "Man in Possession."

The two stars, Rose Hobart and Ralph Forbes, were noted on the New York and London stages before entering motion pictures. Miss Hobart's outstanding role was the lead in "Death Takes a Holiday," with Philip Merivale. Ralph Forbes first came to New York in 1924 to play "Havoc," and remained to play all of Ruth Chatterton's leads on the stage. He is best known on the Pacific Coast for his leading roles in "The Green Hat," with Miss Chatterton, and "The Swan," with Edward Everett Horton, a few years ago.

"Grand Hotel," the sensational dramatic smash which has been packing the Geary for the past six weeks, will end its run on Saturday night, April 9.

ELECTRIC RANGE PROVES BOON TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Experts in home economics assert that no household appliance has been developed with more thought for the needs of the housewife that the electric range. Recent improvements have centered about the oven. The oven heat regulator, which is a part of any really modern electric range, is a simple enough appearing device, but its service is one of great consideration. The oven heat regulator means freedom from oven watching. This advantage can only be appreciated by one who has stood over an oven guarding a meal against the vagaries of a temperamental stove.

The best regulator operates automatically and keeps the oven at a constant given temperature. By setting a simple lever, the oven is heated to just the temperature desired and kept at this degree until its work is finished. Once the food has been prepared and placed in the oven for cooking, the regulator set at the correct temperature, it need not be looked at until time to take it out.

An even newer development than the temperature control is the time control clock which turns the current off at any time desired. Better than that, it even turns the current on at a predetermined time. For instance, if it is desired to have the oven lighted at 4 o'clock and turned off at 6 o'clock, but it is inconvenient to be home to start the cooking, the food can be placed in the oven before leaving the house and the time control set for 4 o'clock. At exactly that hour the current will automatically turn on, the food will cook at the indicated temperature set on the heat regulator, and when two hours have passed the current will automatically turn off.

Oven insulation must not be forgotten when speaking of the modern electric range. The principal advantage of insulation is that all the heat is retained in the oven. This not only permits of the currents' being turned off long before cooking has been completed, but keeps the kitchen cool.

RHEUM-ATISM

When the kidneys are not active enough, uric acid settles in the joints and tissues. Pain results. To end this trouble try drinking plenty of water and taking Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules. For 236 years, this fine, old preparation has been widely prescribed for just this purpose. That its popularity has endured so long is the best proof that it works. 35c & 75c.

From the H. H. Smith Lumber Yard

VOLUME 4 FRIDAY, APRIL 8, 1932 NUMBER 37

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

There is no use trying to joke with a woman. The other day Jones heard a good conundrum and decided to try it on his wife.

"Do you know why I am like a mule?" he asked.

"No," she replied. "I know you are, but I don't know why."

See Our Stuff

Parents who disobey their children are a problem.

The successful man makes hay while the sun shines, instead of looking for four-leaf clovers in the hay.

A sure way to lose control of your car—forget to make a payment.

"Die when I may, I want it said of me by those who knew me best, that I always plucked a thistle and planted a flower when I thought a flower would grow."—Abraham Lincoln.

You can't always win, but you can always smile.

He (noticing cow and calf in field rubbing noses in bovine love): "The sight of that makes me want to do the same thing."

She: "Go to it—that's our cow."

"Now, Johnny," said the indignant mother, what do little boys get for telling lies?"

Johnny (after a moment's thought): "They get to ride for half fare."

The only thing that ever accomplishes anything by just running around is a circular saw.

"I keep on reading about capital and labor, but I can never understand about it."

"But it's simple. You give me ten dollars; that's the capital."

"And the labor?"

"That's what you have getting it back from me."

Good will is the answer to good service.

"Oh, officer! There's a man following me, and I think he must be drunk."

"Yes," agreed the officer as he gave her the once over, "I think he must be."
